

Campaign Finance Reform

WHEREAS Candidates for public office now depend upon large contributions to run competitive campaigns; and

WHEREAS Elected officials often operate on behalf of contributors who use their wealth to control government decision making; and

WHEREAS Members of Congress often represent their own interests, special interests and their political party before considering the interests of the people they were elected to represent; and

WHEREAS Even highly principled officials who want to stay in office to serve their constituents are forced into highly objectionable compromises in order to finance re-elections; therefore be it

RESOLVED That we support:

Comprehensive campaign finance reform and “clean money” public financing of all public elections encompassing local, state and national elections
